FIN9330 - STUDIES IN CAPITAL MARKETS AND FINANCIAL INTERMEDIATION

Syllabus

July. 1 - July. 19, 2024

Term Duration: July. 1 - July. 19, 2024

Credit Points: 4

Level: Postgraduate

Instructor Name: TBA

Home Institution: Beijing Institute of Technology

Lecture Hour: 15:40-18:40

Course Description

This course aims to provide insights into theories and practices relating to financial intermediation with a particular emphasis on banks. It introduces students to the risks that banks face in the increased competition and the appropriate regulation of banks and financial intermediaries. The course also examines the subtlety and plasticity of financial institutions and capital market practices. It combines the upstream issues in risk measurement and the regulative environment surrounding banks by analyzing financial intermediaries and market practices. Students will explore techniques and models for valuing fixed-income securities and their derivatives in managing various risks.

Course Aims

Upon successful completion of this course, students should be able to:

1. discuss and evaluate key theories relating to the role of banks as financial intermediaries and the regulation of banks;
2. develop an understanding of the theories of financial intermediation and techniques applied within major financial intermediaries;
3. discuss and evaluate the risks which banks face and explain how these risks are managed, with particular focus on techniques of asset and liability management, and credit risk measurement and management;
4. understand recent developments in financial risk management and regulation, including credit risk models, bank loan sales, securitization, fixed-income instruments, and capital adequacy;
5. develop the ability to analyze and evaluate the capital market and understand how it impacts corporate management;
6. understand and explain the reoccurring global economic crisis;
7. develop critical-thinking and problem-solving abilities in planning strategies for risk management and effective-work in a team.

Academic Honesty

Academic honesty is not only a fundamental part of learning and teaching but also a core value that this course embraces. Behaviors of academic dishonesty, as outlined hereinafter, are unacceptable and will be penalized:

- a) Plagiarism where students present work for assessment, publication or otherwise that is not their own, without appropriate attribution or reference to the source. Plagiarism can include:
 - i) paraphrasing or copying published and unpublished work without a reference;
 - ii) adopting the ideas or concepts of others, including the structure of an existing analysis without due acknowledgement by way of reference to the original work or source.
- b) Collusion, where students present work as independent work when it has in fact been produced in whole or in part with others unless prior permission for joint or collaborative work has been given by the Course Coordinator. Collusion can include:
 - i) a student inappropriately assisting with or accepting assistance with the production of an assessment task;
 - ii) submitting work that is the same or substantially similar to another student's work for the same assessment task.

- c) Cheating, where a student acts in such a way as to seek to gain an unfair advantage or assist another student to do so. Cheating can include:
- i) submitting falsified, copied or improperly obtained data relating to results of practicum, field trips or other work as if they were genuine; submitting an assessment task with the intention of deceiving or misleading the instructor about the student's contribution to the work;
 - ii) submitting an assessment task written or answered for the student by another person or which the student has copied from another person;
 - iii) submitting the same or a substantially similar piece of work for assessment in two different courses (except in accordance with approved study and assessment schemes);
 - iv) a student falsely indicating that they have been present at an activity where attendance is required;
 - v) completing an assessment task outside the conditions specified for that task.
- d) Cheating in Examinations means engaging in dishonest practice or breaching the rules regarding examinations, which can include:
- i) communicating in any way during an examination with any person who is not an examination supervisor inside or outside the examination venue;
 - ii) giving or accepting assistance from any person who is not an examination supervisor whilst in the examination venue;
 - iii) reading, copying from or otherwise using another student's work in an examination or knowingly allowing a student to do so;
 - iv) possessing, referring to or having access to any material or device containing information directly or indirectly related to the subject matter under examination, other than that explicitly approved by the Course Coordinator;
 - v) acquiring, or attempting to acquire, possess or distribute examination materials or information without approval;
 - vi) permitting another person to attend an examination on a student's behalf or attending an examination on behalf of another student;
- e) Other dishonest acts including but not limited to:
- i) altering or falsifying any document or record for the purposes of gaining academic advantage;
 - ii) offering or giving money or any item or service to a University staff member or any other person to gain an academic advantage for the student or another person;
 - iii) inventing references.
